Hi there. We’re >>venture>>, the leading startup competition in Switzerland. Nice to e-meet you.

If you’re here, it’s because you have an idea. An innovative one at that. So, before we tell you more about ourselves, let’s talk about YOU.

You’re probably asking yourself, “can I even participate in this competition?” We’ll give you a checklist of where you should be in terms of your startup to give you a sense if you’re in the right spot. We’ll get into the details of the competition soon enough. Promise.
Without impact, innovation is just an idea with promise.

JUDITH RODIN
I consider myself an early stage not-for-profit startup: I have an idea for a not-for-profit organization or already run one

My idea or organization is innovative

My idea or organization contributes to one or more of the UN sustainable development goals

My (proposed) operating model is financially sustainable and doesn’t depend on individual philanthropists after an initial startup phase

I’m based in Switzerland and run (or plan to run) my organization in the country

If you’ve checked these boxes, then settle in. This competition just may be what you’re looking for.
Now that we know a little about you, let us introduce ourselves.

Founded in 1997, venture was one of the first major players in the budding Swiss startup ecosystem and has become the leading startup competition in the country.

As a not-for-profit foundation ourselves, we are convinced that not-for-profit organizations (NPOs) are an indispensable force to address the challenges of our times. This is why we open the competition from 2023 onwards to NPOs. Our goal is to help them get their jumpstart to create social and environmental impact across Switzerland and beyond.

The perks of participating? Finalists get access to mentorship from our network, and if you’re crowned as one of our winners, you’ll also get non-dilutive cash prizes. Every year, we give out nearly CHF 600,000 to the most innovative Swiss business and not-for-profit startups to jumpstart their journey!
ABOUT >>VENTURE>>
HERE’S A QUICK OVERVIEW

> Two competition tracks: Not-for-profit track and business track, the latter run in five industry verticals

> Prize money breakdown: 1st Place – CHF 50,000, 2nd pace – CHF 20,000, 3rd place – CHF 10,000

> Organizers ETH Zurich, McKinsey & Company, Knecht Holding, Innosuisse, EPFL

> Support Mentoring for finalists, pitch training workshops, industry contacts, all free of charge

> Jury 150+ jurors and the Advisory Board evaluate pro bono in a three-stage process. See who they are on our website venture.ch

Did you also know we have events open to everyone?

Every year, we host a Kickoff event to mark the opening of the competition. Also, you’ll have the chance to sit down one-on-one with jurors and your startup plan to ask your burning questions before the submission deadline.
Good question. For starters, we’re rooting for you. Our goal is to foster innovation in the non-profit sector by providing not-for-profit startups access to experts in your particular field and who work in your industry. Not to mention, a nice boost with cash prizes and visibility in the ecosystem and media.

Most of our alumni will also agree on one thing about their >>venture>> experience. The quality of the network they got access to was unparalleled.

Bottom line, at >>venture>> you get validation by Switzerland’s most successful leaders executives that YOUR idea is the next great idea! That, in itself, is priceless. Oh yeah- you’ll be pitching live in front of them too.
WHY VENTURE
OUR ALUMNI

"venture was an excellent way to kickstart our business. It allowed us to get in contact with the first set of investors, and the extensive media coverage allowed us to reach a large audience."

ANDREAS SCHMOCKER
CEO and Co-Founder of Lumendo, 2017 venture winner

"We don’t think we would be where we are without venture. With every step of the competition, and every contact we’ve made, whether through the pitch training, live pitches, mentor sessions, or our meetings with McKinsey & Company, our idea has been refined at every step into something we’re really proud of."

CARMEN ESCAÑO SERRANO AND SILVIA MARQUEZ CALVET
Co-Founders of Nuniq, 2020 venture winners
Applying to the venture competition meant that – for the first time – we wrote the business idea for novoMOF AG down on a piece of paper. The feedback that we received from the jury during the competition was incredibly valuable and helped us to improve our business model. After winning the business idea track, our entrepreneurial spirit and confidence was skyrocketing. We had a consolidated business plan and 10’000 CHF prize money in your hands and we were ready to take the next step. We invested the prize money to exhibit our business idea at the leading industry conference, where we generated our first leads. Furthermore, the credential gave us enough credibility/visibility to be noticed by seed investors. Exactly 6.5 months after the competition, we closed the seed financing round and founded the company two months later.
WHY "VENTURE"
OUR ALUMNI

During the "venture" competition we were able to meet people who would otherwise not have been reachable for us as a start-up.

Participating in "venture" gives you the support you need as a young entrepreneur. You meet the people and coaches that challenge you based on their experience and finally you get money without any obligation. "venture" gives you a boost: you still need to do all the hard work, but it provides you with the necessary support and network.

DR. YANN TISSOT
Co-Founder of L.E.S.S., 2014 "venture" winner

I think the "venture" competition helped us to build up our network, to learn how to write a business plan because we were scientists before, to get in contact with our first customers, and to learn how to do business. This helped us accelerate as a startup.

FELIX MAYER
Co-Founder and CEO, Sensirion, 1998 "venture" winner
It's a 4-step process which we'll delve right into, but if you want to skip the reading, you can also watch this quick video.
Put your idea on paper and organize it into a Startup Plan (10-20 pages in English, and in PDF format). Register on our submission platform on venture.ch/participate and check out our submission guidelines, which can help you prepare your plan. Upload your plan to our platform – don’t worry, you can always update your submission until the submission deadline.

TIP: This document will be doing the pitching for you, so keep this in mind when choosing what to include for the jury to review.

> Every single participant will receive highly valuable written feedback from 3 different jurors.

> The application process is completely free, and the feedback is invaluable.
From the written submissions, our Jury Round 1 chooses the top 10 finalists (you’ll find details on the grading criteria below and on our submission platform). You’re one step closer! You’ve made it to the finals.

> Interested in mentorship? You’ve earned it! As a finalist, you get access to the >>venture>> mentors, who bring deep expertise and years of experience to the table.

> Refine your pitching skills for Round 2 by participating in a pitch training session held by communications experts and donors.

TIP: Share your long-term vision alongside your practical short-term next steps that will steer you in the right direction. Don’t neglect your numbers, they paint an essential picture of your venture.
Let’s delve into the details.
What do you need to successfully participate in this competition?

> An innovative idea – can’t stress the importance of this enough!

> 10–20-page startup plan written in English – details on this in a bit.

> Your idea/established organization must focus on a not-for-profit purpose. This means you’re serving the public good and may not distribute or aim to distribute any profits to members or shareholders other than the beneficiaries identified in the organization’s purpose.

> If you’ve already established your not-for-profit organization, it cannot be older than five years. If you haven’t registered or established your not-for-profit yet, that’s no problem, you can still participate.

> Your initiative addresses one or more of the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDG’s).

> Legal residence in Switzerland. Residence of one team member is sufficient.

> A minimum of one team member is at least 18 years old.

> Not-for-profit organizations can be active in Switzerland or abroad, but they must be headquartered in Switzerland, or the team must intend to do so.

The >>venture>> NPO competition is not for not-for-profit organizations that:

> Focus on a religious purpose. Benefits must be offered to stakeholders regardless of their religion.

> Focus on political lobbying or direct exercise of political rights (i.e. no initiative committees, election campaigns etc.).
A detailed breakdown of the necessary content of your startup plan can be found here. But, you’re extremely busy and your time is valuable so here are the highlights of the grading criteria:

> Impact 30%
Tell us how your startup contributes to the UN Sustainable Development Goals and in doing so creates an impact and sustainable change to better our planet, our society, or our lives.

> Innovation 20%
Tell us why you’re different. Where does your innovation lie?

> Team 20%
A startup is only as strong as its team. Show off your starting lineup and the positions you know you need to fill to complete your all-star team.

> Implementation planning 15%
Explain how your idea or startup organization will grow into a successful organization at scale. Describe the milestones that are important along your journey in order to maximize your impact.

> Sustainability of funding model and funding strategy 15%
Show us the numbers. This gives our jurors a sense if you really understand the business side of running an organization. Explain how you plan to sustainably finance your organization by generating own revenues and/or broadening your funding model.
A few insider tips: Your startup plan submission should pitch for you. The first round is by written submission only. That means, your submission should be clear, concise, and inviting to read for the 3 jurors who will review your case. Beware of long, wordy papers which can be quite unappealing when trying to sell a startup plan.

> Explicitly state your impact, ideally along the five dimensions of impact established by the Impact Measurement Project. Show why you do it better than anyone else: Demonstrate your innovation in the space.

> Be realistic when it comes to estimating the size of your impact and reach. Experts will be reading your startup plan, and they’ll clearly see if your numbers are inflated.

> Be clear as to how you will attract funding and why donors will feel compelled to fund your initiative. Show how you will get from a handful of early supporters to a broad fundraising base and generate some revenues of your own.

> Show that you understand the needs of your stakeholders, adopting their perspectives whenever necessary, and why you’re well placed to work together with them.

> We live in a very crowded and noisy world, and your marketing will play a key role in the success of your organization. Explain your outreach strategy, but also show us firsthand that you’re storytelling is up to par and clearly explain how you will create an impact in an innovative way. Use numbers/statistics whenever possible.

> Allow jurors to evaluate you. Don’t hide information that may be key for a juror to understand your startup. This is a highly professional and confidential process, and your privacy is of utmost importance.
In this round, you’ll have 5 minutes to pitch in front of our jurors. This will be followed by a short Q&A session. Make the most out of this round by preparing a clear summary of your innovation solution to drive societal impact, your USP, fundraising / revenue generation strategy team description, and roadmap.

> We know it’s a competition, but be honest about where you stand. You’re in the early stages and our jurors know this.

> Highlight the benefit to your stakeholders. If you can quantify it, even if it’s an estimate, please do. It’s extremely helpful for our jurors to understand the impact of your innovation.

> We can’t stress innovation enough. How is your initiative different – and better – than others?

> Why do you think YOU can make this NPO happen? What knowledge, skill set, expertise do you and your team have to make this a success? Don’t have the all-star team in place yet? That’s totally fine. Demonstrate that you’re aware of the gaps in your team.
This is the final round and you’ll be pitching in front of top-level leaders of established not-for-profit organizations who will determine your ranking in the competition. Here are a few tips to shape your final pitch accordingly:

> It’s imperative you capture their attention immediately. The Advisory Board receive proposals all day, every day. Make sure yours stands out.

> Don’t forget to paint the big picture about what you’re doing and the “why” behind it. They want to see the next big thing and stand behind something with a cause.

> Storytelling is great, but don’t overdo it.

> Numbers are definitely needed here, but the kind that you can easily digest in a minute.

> Lastly, have a roadmap. Show your short and long-term vision for your startup. It’s great to focus on the here and now but show the Advisory Board that you also have big plans and a way to achieve them.
